

It's Half Past Pisces in the Astrological Clock

A Lunar Eclipse in Virgo: Healing Waters, Release, and the Sacred Feminine

MAR 14, 2025

Today, I woke up feeling different. It must be the Bloody moon!!! However, the events of the past few weeks are still settling within me—the Alfred cyclone, the end of our time in Lismore, a new friend, the inner chaos, the uncertainty about the future, the process of letting go. This Full Moon in Virgo with a Lunar Eclipse marks an ending, a release, a reckoning with what we can no longer carry.

Virgo Moon Opposing Pisces Sun: The Dance of Order and Surrender

This eclipse is a potent moment of integration between opposites. The Moon in Virgo, the sign of meticulous care, healing, and discernment, faces the Sun in Pisces, the sign of surrender, dissolution, and divine trust.

Both feminine signs, one intuitive other rational. One ruled by Jupiter and Neptune other ruled by mercury. How to ballance that??

This opposition is asking us:

- Where are we holding on too tightly? Where do we need to release?
- How can we trust the unknown while still tending to the details of our lives?
- Are we over-controlling (Virgo) or overly passive (Pisces)?

The presence of Saturn, Neptune, and the North Node also in Pisces intensifies this moment, bringing both karmic weight and light to the unconscious parts.

- Saturn conjunct the Sun grounds the dreamy Piscean energy, urging us to take responsibility for our healing. Saturn is the reality check, the discipline within the dissolution.
- Neptune, Pisces' ruler, amplifies the feeling of release, urging us to surrender illusions and outdated expectations. This signifies that it is an unconscious participation of unknown forces.
- The North Node points toward destiny—this eclipse is not random. It is part of a larger cycle, directing us toward what our soul needs to evolve and it will be happening again this year.

To add to the intensity, Mercury turns retrograde in Aries tomorrow, and Venus is already retrograde in Aries. The energy is loud, demanding reflection. Relationships are under scrutiny—where do we stand as individuals within them?

The sacred feminine—our ability to nurture, intuit, and hold space—is calling for attention and unconditional love. Here competition is not necessary, only mutual support.

A Pisces-Virgo Encounter: Synchronicity, Community, and Healing Work

This energy manifested for me in an encounter that felt guided, woven into the fabric of this lunation.

On the New Moon, I met a woman at Tea Tree Lake, a mother with her young son, Malaleuca—Muki, as she calls him. She was radiant, with a presence that felt both grounding and ethereal. When I mentioned that I work with astrology, her eyes lit up. we talk for a long time.

That day at the lake was a Virgo-Pisces scene in itself—earth and water, detail and dream. We sawm in the fresh water, the kids kayak in the lake, the golden light shimmering across the surface. I invited her to my home so I could explain better, and this week, she came over.

She told me she is from southern Australia, but she lives in a community near by. She arrived with a friendly dog, and we immediately fell into deep conversation. We shared a hibiscus tea. She gave me an oil massage; I read her astrological chart. A moment of pure exchange—feminine, collaborative, sacred.

There was something familiar about her energy. As I reached for a book called 'Love and hate' to give her, I noticed it had a distinct oily scent—just like hers. I had bought it second-hand long ago, never knowing why I felt compelled to keep it. But now, in her hands, it made sense. This is Virgo-Pisces magic—the body holds memory, and so do objects. Some things, some people, are destined to find us.

This is the work I love. To share star wisdom, to create sacred spaces for women, to gather, to support, to be in communion. This eclipse feels like a reaffirmation of that path. Virgo and Pisces in balance—service and surrender, healing and flow, hands in the earth, eyes to the sky.

The Power of Water: Destruction and Healing

This past week, water revealed its dual nature—the cyclone, the floods, the devastation in town. Neptune rules Pisces, and Pisces rules the ocean. The power of water is both destruction and dissolution. The flood wiped everything out, suspending normal life—just like The Hanged Man. Surrender. Wait. Watch.

But water is also medicine. Tea Tree Lake is sacred healing. The Bundjalung people knew this long before us. The oil-infused water cleanses wounds, purifies, restores. This eclipse is the same—the waters that destroy are also the waters that heal.

Rituals for the Lunar Eclipse in Virgo

1. Water Purification – Take a ritual bath with salt, essential oils, or herbs like hibiscus and rosemary. Imagine the water washing away all that no longer serves you.
2. Journaling & Reflection – What needs to be released? What structures are dissolving? How can you invite healing into your daily life?
3. Sacred Feminine Connection – Gather with women, share stories, support each other. Collaboration over competition.
4. Grounding Practices – Virgo rules the body. Walk barefoot, touch the earth, eat nourishing foods, regulate your nervous system. Detox where needed—physically, emotionally, spiritually.

Pretty much, do things you do when you are bleeding. And that is exactly what I am doing.

What Are You Releasing?

This eclipse is a turning point—the end of the astrological year. A final clearing before we step into something new.

I'd love to hear from you! What are you releasing? How are you experiencing this Virgo-Pisces energy in your life? Share your thoughts in the comments or send me a message—I truly appreciate connecting with you.

If my work resonates with you, the best way to support it is by liking, sharing, and engaging with my content. Your interaction helps spread this wisdom to others who may need it. Let's build a space where we support, reflect, and evolve together.

With love,
